

ADULT LIVING ALTERNATIVES

We have to make many choices in the course of our lives. Some are relatively unimportant, such as the size and composition of our morning espresso eye-opener. Where we live, who we marry, what occupations we pursue are life-defining decisions. But, no one ever chooses to be old, or to develop a disability.

The chances are that, if you live long enough, or have a disability, you must decide which care setting is best for you. The right choice will bring comfort and enjoyment. The wrong choice may cause needless suffering and disappointment.

Those who plan ahead often make the best choices. They research extensively, ask a million questions, consult with friends, professionals, etc. Rather than wait for a crisis to dictate events, they take into consideration all possible scenarios, and prepare for the worst while hoping for the best. And it doesn't hurt to have lots of money. People who plan ahead in this fashion probably account for less than 10% of the population.

The rest do the best they can until nature and bad luck upset their relatively tranquil lives and force them to make difficult decisions about where they'll live and who will take care of them. At that point I hope that they have this handbook, or something like it, in their hands.

Informed consumers become effective consumers, and cause long-term care developers and operators to be more consumer-friendly. Marketing efforts will always emphasize the appearances of facilities, but wise consumers see through the fluff of superficialities. Most of the community knows by now that the most important element of any care setting is the caregiver.

It doesn't matter if you're considering a five person foster home, or a two hundred person facility, you must learn the identity of the caregivers who will be most responsible for your health and safety, or the health and safety of your relative, client or patient. You don't just move into a home or facility, you actually put yourself in the hands of real people whose qualities and characteristics will have a major effect on your life.

The primary goal of this handbook is to have everyone understand and appreciate the ideas and sentiments expressed in the previous paragraph. Let me know if you have questions.

Rick Davison, Director

THE PROCESS

Decisions are best made jointly. Naturally, no one, including elders, wants to leave the familiar comforts and privacy of their own home. Involve your loved one in all the steps as much as possible. Be prepared to make the final decision on your own, if necessary.

Should you wish to locate an acceptable home or facility for your loved one, call us up (Adult Living Alternatives, 503-288-0686). For no cost to yourself, we will evaluate your loved one's needs and preferences, and recommend the best care settings. We maintain a database of more than 1,000 homes and facilities in the Portland metropolitan area. We have been in business since 1985.

Whatever the reason, please do not hesitate to call if you have any questions about this guide or anything else pertaining to the care of the elderly. We try to spread good will because that helps create business for us, and is a satisfying way to live one's life.

THE INTERVIEW

The primary focus of the interview is on the care needs of the person needing placement. We need to learn medical diagnoses, degree of assistance needed with activities of daily living (ADLs), sleeping habits and types of medications prescribed by a physician.

Also, we need to take into consideration preferences for location, amenities, services, appearances and length of stay. Information about the capacity to pay for long-term care is necessary for planning. Some homes/facilities are very expensive and will not accept Medicaid payments.

Following the interview, we will access our database for appropriate care settings. We will contact you and explain the reason for the recommendations.

Please keep in mind that we operate by the precept that in seeking long-term care, families are not renting a room but are hiring caregivers. Having one's care needs met are always the highest priority.

Before you go to the next step access the following website maintained by the State of Oregon to learn more about the homes/facilities we recommend, especially the violations: <https://ltclicensing.oregon.gov/Facilities>

THE SELECTION

Once you have our recommendations it is time to visit

Please try to call the home/facility operator within 48 hours. We have already spoken to them and they are awaiting your call/visit. If they don't hear from you right away, they'll call us and ask when you will visit. If you do not intend to visit right away, please let them know. Thank you.

Avoid early morning visits, the busiest time of the day. Late evenings in foster homes will usually find everyone in bed and the caregivers too exhausted to be at their best. In facilities, the employees in charge of admissions (marketing) usually call it a day by 5 PM. The caregivers at an facility may know little about the details of the facility's operation, other than their own tasks and responsibilities. It's best to make an appointment with the marketing representative.

The best time of the day to visit, in my opinion, is late morning before lunch. Residents are usually up and about awaiting the main meal of the day, in most cases. After lunch most home/facility residents retire to their rooms to nap. Late-afternoon, before dinner, is the second-best time to visit.

THE EVALUATION

The first part of the evaluation starts with the visit to the home or facility. Some people are perfectly content to walk around the home or facility, making note of the cleanliness and attractiveness. My suggestion is to look below the surface and get into the substance. Your loved one's safety and well being may depend on the quality and extent of your evaluation.

We'll deal with two different types of care settings in this step: Adult Foster Homes (AFHs) and Assisted Living Facilities/Residential Care Facilities (ALFs/RCFs). Many of the same issues can apply to the other types of facilities mentioned elsewhere in this section.

ADULT FOSTER HOMES (AFHs)

For the most part, the best AFHs are those where the owner lives in the AFH and is the primary caregiver. There are two reasons for this: first, the owner is invested in the success of the business; second, there is rarely frequent caregiver turnover. Do not be afraid to ask the owner if he/she is the primary caregiver. If he/she isn't, ask who is. Find out who is the primary caregiver, and find out how you feel about him/her.

- People who are foreign-born own approximately 80% of AFHs. The state tests English language proficiency, but can't guarantee that all caregivers are tested and fluent. Would the caregivers you meet be able to communicate with your loved one?
- Discuss with the owner the violations you found in the State website.
- Request references from families of present and past residents (you will find that families are often the best source of information about an AFH).
- Ask if physicians or nurses have written references about the AFH.
- Observe the current residents. Keep in mind that your presence is undoubtedly making them feel a little uncomfortable. They are probably silently checking you out. AFHs are filled with frail elderly people, many of whom may be suffering from dementia. If you do not spend much time around elderly people, you may think they're all suffering from dementia. Spend some time talking to a few of them. They're probably lonely and would enjoy the company. You might be surprised by their mental acuity. Studies have found that AFH residents value social contacts with visiting relatives/ friends most of all. Next they enjoy interacting with caregivers. They like to chat with the other residents during the three meals, although they probably won't if a visitor is present.

Families usually say that they're looking for an AFH that will keep their loved one until he/she dies. On the other hand, they may say in the very next sentence that they want an ACH where the other residents are no more disabled or demented than their loved one. I trust you can see the dilemma this type of thinking creates.

Do not be too concerned about the classification of AFHs, which are classified as levels one, two or three. There is only a handful of level one homes; most are level two; many are level three (supposed to handle the heaviest care), but the methodology used to assign classifications is, in the most cases, a bureaucratic run-around. The Oregon Department of Human Resources, confusing matters further, in setting Medicaid rates, classifies Medicaid residents at one of four levels, based upon an arbitrary point system, complicating matters significantly. Worse, Medicaid applicants are categorized in one of seventeen "survivability" levels, based upon perceived care needs. Forget about the levels; what you want is a good AFH with a solid track record. State and County employees, who regulate foster homes, are very flexible about allowing heavy care persons in level two homes, provided certain conditions are met.

Most people want to find an AFH conveniently located near their own homes. Most AFHs are located in the suburbs far from centrally located Portland neighborhoods. They tend to be in residential subdivisions and not along well-traveled commercial routes. For example, in Multnomah County, about 75% of the AFHs are east of 82nd Ave., and about 25% are west of 82nd Ave. On the west side, there is only one Multnomah County foster home in NW Portland between the Willamette River and the Washington County line. It's a hard lesson to learn, but people are better off selecting the most stable home rather than the most conveniently located.

There is no standardization of AFH rates. AFHs will ask for what they think they deserve. If they ask for too much, they will stay empty unless they offer exceptional care. If they ask for too little, they can't afford the best food, and will be less able to hire relief caregivers and will "burn out".

ASSISTED LIVING FACILITIES/RESIDENTIAL CARE FACILITIES (ALFs/RCFs)

There is little difference between ALFs and RCFs. ALFs are required to provide kitchenettes in every apartment. A few RCFs provide kitchenettes in every apartment. There are a few other minor differences.

The marketing person who will show you around the facility is not a caregiver. His/her job is to fill up the facility. Charm and enthusiasm are fine qualities in a marketing representative, but, as far as your loved one is concerned, it would be better if the direct caregivers exhibited these qualities, in addition to competency, reliability and compassion.

Ask the marketing person for a copy of the Uniform Disclosure Statement. Facilities have been required since August 1st, 2002 to give this statement to all interested parties, explaining, for example, what the caregiver-resident ratio is on all shifts (the most important information you will discover during your visit), what are the costs, conditions for giving notices, refund policy, etc. Some facilities are reluctant to volunteer this statement, but don't be shy, ask for a copy. It is often included in the marketing packet given to visitors.

Find out what the caregiver turnover rate was the last year. The industry standard is about 100% a year. Anything much less than that indicates relative stability.

Don't forget to ask about the violations listed in the State website.

Inquire about "self-directed care". Simply put, this encourages a facility not to provide care unless the resident asks for help. Developers of this policy wanted residents to preserve their independence and dignity. Regardless, you want the assurance that help will be available when needed.

Ask about "aging in place". Supposedly, this means that a facility will keep a resident forever. Often, the facility will ask the family to hire additional staff from the outside. This could be very costly. Ask what conditions would cause the facility to ask your loved one to leave.

I know it is hard, but try not to be taken in too much by the appearance of the facility.

Be aware that the sprawling dimensions of some facilities can present problems. People with mobility impairments run a greater risk of falling in larger facilities. Some residents, unable to negotiate safely the distance between their room and the dining room, become prematurely confined to wheelchairs.

Many elders in Oregon have never lived communally. They may have lived in their own homes for their entire lives. Most of their generation, especially the women, probably did not experience barracks life in the military, and may not have lived in college dormitories. Consider whether your loved one would take advantage of the recreational and socialization opportunities. Or, would he/she "hide out" (easy to do in a large facility) in his/her room? Remember, residents reserve the right to choose what to do with their time. Neither you nor facility employees can force residents to take part in activities unless they are willing.

Most socialization usually takes place at mealtime, three times a day. Many residents like to be by themselves between meals, watching TV, reading or napping. There are exceptions, of course.

Ask about the charges. You will hear about "levels" again. Levels in ALFs/RCFs have nothing to do with Adult Care Home levels. Make sure you understand what happens when your loved one is charged for a higher level. Increasingly, ALFs/RCFs have started using a point system to calculate charges instead of levels. Ask how much more staff time will be devoted to your loved one at the higher level.

Take a look at the activity schedule. Make note of the scheduled time for an activity your loved one may enjoy. Show up at the scheduled time to see how many people attend, or if the activity actually takes place at all.

RELATED ISSUES (IN-HOME CARE, MEDICAID, SENIOR CENTERS, OVERVIEW OF LIVING/ CARE ARRANGEMENTS)

IN-HOME CARE

WHAT IS IT?

In-home care provides an individual what he/she needs to remain at home. There are four principal service areas.

- Personal care is help with activities of daily living: bathing, dressing, toileting, mobility, eating and behavior.
- Homemaker services include shopping, cleaning, cooking, laundry, etc.
- Nursing services include changing dressings, giving injections, administering medications, checking vital signs, etc.
- Companionship.

WHO PROVIDES IT?

There are more than 100 private in-home care agencies in the Portland metropolitan area. These businesses have certified nurse's aides, homemakers and nurses.

They are technically employees of the agency, which pays all taxes and insurance. Some agencies provide only homemaker services and companionship. Other agencies offer personal care, and the availability of limited nursing services.

Most agencies have only hourly employees available. Only a few will assign live-in caregivers.

Some Senior Centers keep lists of people who say they're interested in providing in-home care. Craigslist offers listings from individuals who wish to work private-duty. Portland Community College, Mt. Hood Community College, Clackamas Community College, and Portland State University operate job placement services for potential caregivers. The Oregon Employment Division is another option. Contact the Job Order Desk. None of these sources is foolproof. Always check references.

Limited services are available through local Area Agencies on Aging through a program called Oregon Project Independence. Services are usually limited to homemaker functions. Costs depend on program guidelines.

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST?

In-home care agencies are the most expensive of all options listed above. Most require a minimum of three hours at about $25- $35/hour. Eight-hour shifts could cost more than $250.

Elderly persons can negotiate pay rates with caregivers not associated with in-home care agencies. Make sure the person knows what is expected of them. Compose a care plan. Check it periodically for compliance. Above all, don't take anything for granted. The law requires minimum wage to be paid. The client as employer is expected to pay withholdings. Consult Wage & Hour for guidelines.

MEDICAID

WHAT IS IT?

Medicaid helps pay for care and services required by eligible people. The federal government and the State of Oregon fund it. The State of Oregon and local counties administer the program. Medicaid should not be confused with Medicare, which is a federally funded health insurance that pays for hospitalization, physicians' services, rehabilitation and supplies, etc., and has no income criteria for qualification.

WHO QUALIFIES?

There are several Medicaid programs. This guide is limited to those people with disabilities, and people aged 65 and older who are in need of one or more of the following services: In-Home Care, Adult Foster Home, Residential Care Facility, Special Needs Facility, Assisted Living Facility, Adult Day Health Care, Nursing Facility, plus standard medical services.

Oregon evaluates applicants' monthly income and assets, as well as care needs to determine eligibility.

To qualify under ordinary circumstances an individual's monthly income may be no more than $2250. Individuals with higher incomes may qualify if they have excessive medical or care bills. Oregon has adopted rules recognizing "income cap trusts" that allow persons with higher incomes to qualify for Medicaid benefits.

Liquid assets (savings, investments, vacation property, and other assets that may be liquidated) cannot amount to more than $2,000 for an individual or $3,000 for a couple. Assets that are not counted include an applicant's home (as long as the applicant or the applicant's spouse lives in it, or the applicant anticipates only a brief stay in a care facility), a car, most personal possessions, and a burial fund or life insurance policy amounting to $1,500 for an individual, or $3,000 for a couple.

In the case of married couples, the spouse that does not need care may retain up to $126,420 as the Community Spouse Resource Allowance. In some cases, the spouse that does not need care may also be able to retain some of the monthly income that is in the applicant's name. Please use these amounts as a guide.
They can change.

WHAT ELSE?

If an individual gives away assets, trades assets, or sells assets for less than fair market value within five years prior to the date of application, he/she may not be eligible for a period of time depending on the assets' value.

The state does not put a lien on an applicant's home, but does make a claim against the estate when both an applicant and an applicant's spouse die.

WHERE TO APPLY?

People may apply at their local Medicaid office. Intake workers will discuss the above issues in great detail. Here is a list of Medicaid offices in the Tri-County area:

Some people may wish to consult an attorney if their estate is considerable, or complicated. Knowledgeable attorneys may give advice about planned gifting, changing non-exempt assets into exempt assets, re-allocating liquid funds, etc. Their services are expensive, but may result in spouses and heirs retaining the bulk of an applicant's estate.

ADULT LIVING ALTERNATIVES

TYPES OF LIVING/CARE SETTINGS

RETIREMENT HOMES

WHAT ARE THEY?

Retirement Homes are semi-independent facilities. Residents live in private apartments (studios, one bedroom, or two bedrooms) and take anywhere from one to three meals a day in the central dining room. Facility employees handle all landscaping and maintenance. Some Retirement Homes offer freestanding private homes or garden apartments. Several Retirement Homes are located on properties which may include an Assisted Living Facility, a Nursing Facility or a Memory Care Center.

Retirement Homes are considered semi-independent facilities because they offer meals in a community dining room and include housekeeping and flat laundry services.

Independent facilities are simply apartment buildings or complexes.

WHO REGULATES THEM?

No governmental agency regulates Retirement Homes.

WHO LIVES IN THEM?

Elders independent in activities of daily living live in Retirement Homes. No Retirement Home routinely admits younger persons. The minimum age for admission varies from facility to facility. Most facilities are 55 or older.

WHAT TYPE OF CARE IS PROVIDED?

Retirement Homes have no caregivers. Residents must be able to care for themselves or hire third-party caregivers. Retirement Home employees will call 911 in the event of an emergency.

WHAT SERVICES ARE PROVIDED?

Aside from meals, Retirement Homes provide weekly housekeeping and linens. There usually is an activity program. Some transportation may be offered. A few Retirement Homes are very near golf courses.

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST?

Costs range from about $1,500/month to more than $4,000/month.

WILL MEDICAID PAY?

Medicaid will not pay for Retirement Homes.

TYPES OF LIVING/CARE SETTINGS:

ASSISTED LIVING FACILITIES

WHAT ARE THEY?

Assisted Living Facilities resemble Retirement Homes, but differ in that they employ caregivers. Residents live in private apartments (studios, one bedroom, or two bedrooms) and take all meals in the central dining room. All apartments contain a kitchenette and a full private bath with a wheelchair accessible shower.
